COLLABORATION_7 (C_7) is the seventh project of the artist initiative COLLABORATION_project that consists of partly varying members. C_7 is a two-year-project run by eight Munich-based artists that resulted in an exhibition tour with several stations. Following two research periods in August 2013 (Mostar via Sarajevo and Zaostrog) and March 2014 (Belgrade) the group went September 2014 "on tour" by bus from Munich via Zaostrog to Mostar, then to Belgrade and back to Munich.

DESTINATIONS AND PARTNERS

Two members of C_7 are related to former Yugoslavia: Sandra Filić and Anton Bošnjak worked as "door openers" and "guides", to get the group in touch with people and places. Anton was born and raised in Mostar and still maintains a close relation to the art scene of his hometown. He made contact to Amila Puzić, Anja Bogojević and Mela Zuljević, all three curators and founders of the collective ABART, who provided C_7 with an even deeper insight in the political, social and historical situation of their country's two biggest cities Sarajevo and Mostar. Sandra is living in Germany since her childhood and got in touch with the Serbian art scene during her stay in London. She made the contact to the Serbian artists Iva Kontić and Mihael Milunović (both based in Belgrade but also living and working in Madrid and Paris) as well as the Serbian curator Maja Kolarić.

VENUES

In Mostar the C_7 was invited by ABART to work at Čorovića Kuća, the memorial house of Bosnian-Serbian author Svetozar Čorović. In Belgrade the artist group was invited as opening-act for the new space called ROTONDA located in the new design-district, a former shopping centre from the 1990ies. Back in Munich the trip ended with a public event at a temporary exhibition site called UNDER (DE)CONSTRUCTION. In exchange, C_7 invited the Serbian artists Iva Kontić and Mihael Milunović in May 2015 to a one-month residency in Munich to realise a project at MaximiliansForum. The Bosnian curator-group ABART is scheduled to realise a project in Munich in 2016.

PROJECTS

The journey was planned as an artistic venture. Main purpose of the trip was to be on the road with a tour-bus and to stop at several sites to connect with the local art scene. Like a music-band C_7 brought along some instruments and staged a collaborative performance based on lyrics written by Franka Kaßner during the trip. For each venue they built a table sculpture and invited the public to a typical Bavarian meal to build up a culinary platform for discussion. The table sculpture was used afterwards as an exhibition display and expanded through several individual artistic contributions.

The tour had several performative and collaborative layers that illustrated the journey itself and the stay at the different sites: the invitation card was designed as a typical picture postcard, which the artists sent back to Germany from the trip; a photo diary was emailed daily to Munich and filled a growing folder in the UNDER (DE)CONSTRUCTION exhibition; a small blue table that was usually used in Beate Engl's studio for discussions and preparations was taken along the whole trip and served not only as a functional object for dinners and picnics but moreover as a platform and even as a performer itself. It was the central piece of the table displays in Mostar, Belgrade and Munich and covered with an aluminium drawing by Thomas Thiede. It was drifting in the sea in Zaostrog and pushed from Čorovića Kuća to the Partisan Memorial Cemetery in Mostar – both moments captured in videos by Leonie Felle.

Inspired by the wild growth of plants at Partisan Memorial Cemetery by Bogdan Bogdanović some artists of C_7 created a deck of cards that documents the large variety of plants and also speaks about the forgotten history of the site.

Furthermore in Spring 2014 C_7 made an open call to former and future collaborators to send them a recent video-work that was screened at the exhibitions. The international selection showed 16 videos of the greater COLLABORATION_network.

MEMORIES

Card game for 2-4 players

2013/2014

We discovered the Partisan Memorial Cemetery during our first stay in Mostar late August 2013. The monument designed by Bogdan Bogdanović in 1965 was destroyed during the Yugoslavian war and rebuilt 2005 as a national monument of Bosnia and Herzegovina. Today the site looks abandoned and overgrown with plants of all kinds. The appearance of a romantic ruin taken back by nature immediately touched all of us. We decided to document the vegetation at the monument and share our discovery in a playful but educational way: a card game.

We took photographs of the diverse flora we found along our path up to the top of the monument, amongst others a lot of herbs and fruit-trees. Each plant can be found twice in the card game and forms a duo out of a close up and a surrounding view. Most of the plants we documented are wild growth; from the original planting selected by Bogdanović we found only four species. (These cards count double, we decided – as the survivors!)

The card game was printed and presented in Mostar and travelled with us to the Belgrade and Munich venues. It will further be part of the exhibition FotoDoks (a festival for contemporary photo documentary) in 2015 in Munich and goes on tour through the countries of former Yugoslavia in 2016, organized in cooperation with the Goethe-Institut.

Opening speech by Maja Kolaric

Curator, Belgrade, RS

COLLABORATION_project is initially constructed on the idea to bridge the gap between artists and the surrounding society by bringing the art closer to the wider community, on the one hand, and on the other, by giving an artistic response to the site of the visited environment. The aesthetic or ideological link between the artists is in the absence, only the artist's response to the perceived features of the visited environment are visible. Artists through COLLABORATION_7 project have build a visible bridge from Munich to Belgrade and their societies. Changing the environment for one month during their residential stay, the Serbian artists were influenced by the historical and socio-cultural similarities or differences of the visited place, society and people. And they are using that very experience in their works.

The artists from Munich have made site-specific works during their residential stay in Belgrade and have publicly exposed their artworks, and artists from Belgrade were influenced by the Munich community and have created works as a reaction to it.

Mihail Milunović has created a video work called "Years" consisting of photos, which were taken all around the City of Munich. As a part of his socio-photographic research and by exposing them he provokes the observer to his or her individual or collective memory related to some specific year. Iva Kontić on the contrary has made a public performance and video installation called "AGIT-PROPFLASH- MOB" in close cooperation with Munich citizens who gave their contribution to the occurrence of the artwork and public performance by exposing to her some of their daily actions.

In the context of COLLABORATION_project and its concept to create an international network of artists that work in different medias and disciplines, the artworks of Kontić and Milunović are made to interact with or within the given society. By using the public space as a platform and ground for showing and creating art instead of the expected or traditionally used spaces such as art galleries or museums, I have recalled the Fluxus movement and their artistic practice. And in light of that analogy, I would like to finish this short speech quoting Yoko Ono: "Art is the process-oriented tool. With the help of this tool we can better understand life's complexity".
